CNSC Internationalization Perspective, Prospects and Targets

Introduction

The Philippines' policy on the internationalization of higher education shall be guided by the poinopies of longing policy ensimined in the 1987 Philippine Constitution that upholds the promotion of radional interest and the nondiminution of national source/girth (Thisps (check gou ph).

In recent years, CHED worked on building the international competitiveness of higher education institutions in the Philippines. The promotion of HEIs was done through various means ranging from participation in educational conferences and fairs in different countries to membership in multilateral platforms and exchanges, among others.

Workshops were organized and held with the objective of developing the Philippines as a center of higher education in identified niches and programs. This was done with leading HEIs from all over the country who were asked to assess their various programs and identify those that were at the cutting edge in their respective fields.

Funding was provided by CHED for the development and sustainability of internationalization programs of HEIs, including grants for international academic mobility. However, the agency was also concerned with thinking beyond just mobility. It also realized that building a brand and value within an international arena was critical to having a competitive edge. In this connection,
